

while the mobile stations receive the modulated signals distorted by a plurality of radio channels of which delay times are different. The modulated signals transmitted by the base station are equalized and demodulated by using a filter of which frequency characteristics ~~is~~ are inverse to that of the radio channels.